

Courses, Coaching and People

We are asked to believe that communications is all about technology. Smartphones, tablets, apps, the internet, the cloud, the list goes on.

However, in reality, all the significant communications, in our business or private lives, depend on the persuasiveness and influencing skills of people, and not the technology, which often gets in the way.

Recognising this reality, at EPS Comms Limited, we develop exceptional training and coaching, and successfully deliver to clients.

After many years of observation, analysis and practise, we have established the one axiom of successful persuasive communications. Given the substance of the message, what really matters is what you say , ie the words, and how you say it, ie voice and body language.

Our Fundamental Model of Communication

Acting techniques work on the feelings that the speaker conveys to the audience: through their voice, how they stand, sit or move, and their gestures.

Content techniques optimise the way words are used, how the message is structured, and how rhetoric is used to sharpen the message.

The two techniques must work together in harmony - each alone cannot the achieve objectives of impact, persuasion and influence.

For over 10 years we have applied this model successfully , coaching business leaders and individuals in the UK and worldwide. Overleaf we summarise what we offer and introduce the experts who coach and train you to be an outstanding communicator.
